

DENISE LOMBARD

AUSTRALIAN LANDSCAPE ARTIST

I was born and grew up in South Africa, completed my Higher School Certificate in Art but pursued another career in Physiotherapy. During the years of working, wife and mother I did no formal art but continued to paint and attend professional courses.

Our move to Australia in 2001 inspired me to pursue my passion more professionally. The amazingly varied landscape of city, sea, bush and desert has formed the basis of my work, working mostly in oil paints but also various other mediums.

Over the years I have done many workshops and art courses, including Summer and Winter schools at Bathurst and the National School of Art in Sydney, all with excellent teachers to guide me. Participating in an inspirational workshop in Tuscany in 2014, changed my painting practice in the way I now approach and express my art.

We live near Lake Macquarie, New South Wales, where I am involved with various Art Groups, exhibiting and selling at their exhibitions. I have been awarded many first and other awards.

My painting practice expresses “the imagination of the inner eye compared to what we actually see”, so you the viewer will see your own perception in the scenes I have created.
